FINEST HARVEST
FEARS FOR PART OF IT

THERE is a danger that portion of Ireland's finest harvest in a hundred years will be lost because of a recent bad turn in the weather. "Hundreds of farmers in the North and West are eating their hearts out watching their crops being threatened with ruin by a spell of bad weather. 'Heartbreaking' is a poor word to describe their situation," an agricultural authority told the Irish Times yesterday.

While some consolation may be derived by the non-farming community from the fact that the wheat crop is not likely to suffer any appreciable depreciation through harvesting difficulties, most of the great crop in the Southern areas already having been cut and saved, farmers in Monaghan, Cavan, Donegal, Leitrim, Mayo, Galway and Sligo have substantial areas of wheat still uncut or in stook, and there is a danger that the recent weather conditions, including a cold spell, may destroy the standing crops or cause rapid germination in the stooks.

LOSS INEVITABLE

"The harvest in the North and West," the Irish Times was told, "is very late this year, and extreme difficulty is being experienced in saving it. It is proving sheer slavery for the farmers, and if those who criticise them on the ground that they are making money and are getting too much for their produce could see the conditions in North Cavan or Donegal at present they would not be so voluble in their complaints. These are not big wheat districts, but they have some wheat, and they have large areas of oats and barley. Much of their crops has been lodged, and, to add to their troubles, they have had to spend extra money on the saving of them—where it has been possible to save them—by reason of hand-cutting being necessary. Those who have their crops cut are by no means out of the wood, for it needs nine or ten days of dry weather to make them suitable for threshing.

"I think there is bound to be some loss; I do not see how it can be avoided," it was added.

TO IMPROVE OUR BREAD

Suggestions for the nutritional improvement of our bread are made in an article by Prof. W. J. E. Jessop on "Some Emergency Nutritional Problems" in the current issue of the Irish Hospital Year Book and Medical Directory.

If the supply of wheat justified it, he says, or if some alternative carbohydrate suitable for mixing with flour for bread-making could be found, then the optimum extraction rate would probably lie between 85 and 90 per cent. (instead of 100, as at present).

Two methods of using the potato as the required carbohydrate are being investigated, he continues. One is the addition of potato-flour, and, as there is no machinery in Eire for the production of potato-flour, attempts are being made to convert machinery designed for other purposes. The second method is to mix with the dough a proportion of boiled mashed potatoes. But he notes the difficulties arising from the fact that potatoes must be washed and peeled and the eyes removed. To be a commercial success it would have to be done on a large scale, and very few firms, he says, have the necessary machinery.

TURN OF TIDE AT STALINGRAD
RUSSIANS GAIN GROUND IN STREET BATTLES

THE turn of the tide appears to have been reached in the month-old battle for Stalingrad, says Reuter's Special Correspondent. Reinforced across the Volga by fresh Soviet troops, Marshal Timoshenko's men inside the city still are holding up the German onslaught.

According to the Soviet night communiqué, the Red Army garrison has captured a "valuable position" within the city.

Soviet pressure from the north-west now is forcing the Germans to divert more and more of their strength to meet the threat to their left flank.

Capture of two dominating hills and a strategic village has brought the relieving forces nearer to the Soviet defenders fighting in the streets.

In the Caucasus, German troop concentrations in one part of the Mozdok area have been caught in a Soviet pincer and are being smashed up, but in a neighbouring sector renewed attacks have driven a wedge into Soviet positions. German attacks have been resumed also south-east of Novorossisk.—(Reuter.)

REDS' DESPERATE DEFENCE

MOSCOW, Friday.—Soviet troops are using every kind of weapon in the streets of Stalingrad, says Reuter's Special Correspondent. Guns are firing down the straight, broad boulevards, while in the side streets machine-gun nests cover all approaches. In a tight corner, where there is no time even to load a mortar, soldiers heave the shells straight at an oncoming tank, disregarding the danger to themselves from blast and splinters.

Using large formations of light and heavy tanks, the Germans made violent efforts to capture an important thoroughfare leading across the city towards the Volga. The Russians, weary from lack of sleep, held out against ten attacks in the course of twelve hours. During the night they made a supreme effort, counter-attacked and routed the Germans from a number of houses in one of the few blocks of buildings left standing. North-west of the city a fierce battle is still going on for the control of an important highway. Two days ago Soviet troops dislodged the Germans and straddled the highway, cutting several important supply lines. German troops, supported by 40 heavy tanks, attacked six times in succession in an attempt to throw back the Russians. They were met by a concentrated cross-fire from machine-guns, which mowed them down like corn. All their attacks were repelled, and the Red Army men now are pushing their offensive forward. More guns, mortars and 'planes are being rushed up by the Germans in an attempt to extricate their infantry from a difficult position.

GUERILLA FORCE

The Germans now have obviously realised that Stalingrad is a tougher proposition than they had expected. As at Leningrad and Moscow, they are facing, not only a well-disciplined army, but also thousands of fierce and determined home guards, prepared to die for their city. These ordinary workmen, with just a cartridge belt slung across their overalls, are the most efficient guerilla force that ever has fought inside a town.

Though battered more every day by unceasing air raids, from a distance Stalingrad still looks like the great city it once was. A panorama of factories stretches in a long ribbon along the Volga, with blackened factory chimneys stretching gaunt outlines to the sky. The house which Stalin made his headquarters when he directed the 1918 defence is standing, but badly battered. On the Volga a constant stream of barges is bringing reinforcements of troops, more guns and munitions, protected by smoke screens.

A chilly autumn wind is beginning to sweep over the battlefield. Artillery men already are donning their winter overcoats, and very soon all the trenches, anti-tank obstacles, and wire entanglements will be white with snow.—(Reuter.)

FIGHTING AT RZHEV

Major-General Rettan, Commanding Officer of the 29th German Division, and many other high officers, were killed at Rzhev, Moscow Radio announced to-night. Regiments have been reduced to 600 men, and some companies now number only 25 to 30 men. At Voronezh only a few men remain of the 593rd Regiment, some companies now being commanded by non-commissioned officers. In the past week the 223rd Division lost 4,500 men in wounded alone.—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Friday.—Berlin radio said to-night:—"Large stone buildings at Stalingrad have been converted into the most powerful defensive bastions. Wooden beams and bent iron girders are obstacles for our assault troops. Sappers must work day and night to clear the roads of mines. Every unit and every soldier has to rely on himself. This makes much more difficult the work of the Higher Commanders. Through the thick smoke of burning houses our infantry push forward. They can only indicate their position by rockets, as telephone communications are mostly impossible."—(Reuter.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Friday. — To-night's Soviet communiqué states:—"During September 25 our forces engaged the enemy in fierce engagements in the areas of Stalingrad, Mozdok and Suryavino. There were no essential changes in other sectors."—(Reuter.)

The supplement states:—"In the Stalingrad area the enemy ceaselessly shelled our troops with guns and mortars. Overcoming stubborn German resistance, our troops captured one valuable position, wiping out about 200 Hitlerites and destroying two lorries, twelve wagons and an ammunition dump. Arms and ammunition were captured.

"North-west of Stalingrad our troops were engaged in active operations. The Germans are ceaselessly bringing up their reserves to this sector and are launching counter-attacks. Three attacks were repelled in the course of one day by a Red Army formation, which disposed of about 1,500 enemy troops, twelve tanks and twenty guns, and other arms.

"South of Novorossisk 2,000 Germans were killed in three days' fighting."—Reuter.

Early this morning a Moscow telegram stated:—All German attempts to break through Soviet defences in Mozdok (Caucasus) area have failed, states a front-line despatch. In one narrow sector the Germans concentrated 35 tanks, with a strong infantry force. Twenty tanks were destroyed or damaged, and the rest retreated. The infantry were rushed back by a counter-attack to their original positions.

TRADE UNION ACT
NEW BILL'S PROPOSALS

Three new catagories will be exempted from the obligation of holding a negotiating licence under the Trade Union Act, 1941, as a result of an amending bill which will be introduced in the Dail during the next session.

The bodies which will be exempted are—A committee established under the Agricultural Wages Act, 1936; an apprenticeship committee established under the Apprenticeship Act, 1931, and a joint industrial council recognised by the Minister for Industry and Commerce; a joint conciliation or arbitration board so recognised, or any similar body so recognised. Exemptions already are granted to a trade board established under the Trade Board Acts, and to the Agricultural Wages Board.

Another important amendment contained in the new bill provides for an appeal from the refusal of membership of a trade union having the exclusive right of organisation. This provision renders it necessary for a trade union, before obtaining the right exclusively to organise masters or workmen of a particular class, to satisfy the Tribunal that it will put into operation a satisfactory system of appeal from refusal of membership.

Ralph Hall (15), 42 North Circular road, Dublin, got into difficulties while bathing at Tara Street Baths yesterday evening. He was assisted out of the water immediately, but collapsed. He was taken to Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, where he died.

4,000 TONS OF BOMBS
TOBRUK'S ORDEAL

R.A.F. and Allied light and heavy bombers have, in 95 days, dropped 4,000 tons of bombs on Tobruk, Marshal Rommel's main North African forward base. On only five nights of the 100 since the big Libyan seaport town fell to the Afrika Korps have the Allied air forces failed to carry out a bombing raid.

Since the beginning of June, a Reuter message states, Allied aircraft in operations over the Mediterranean have also sank forty Axis merchantmen of various kinds totalling over 60,000 tons of shipping.

General Sir Harold Alexanders, G.H.Q., in Cairo, disclosed yesterday that in the latest air operations British torpedo-carrying aircraft have damaged a large tanker, escorted by destroyers, north-west of Tobruk. British patrols are hitting out at the Axis front line positions, and in their latest night raids attacked working parties and patrols. All Axis details were dispersed.—(Reuter.)

BISHOP OF CLOGHER TO RETIRE

In this country, he said, they all were brethren and should seek Divine help to overcome bitterness so that every man would be free to serve God without hinderance in his own way so long as he did not thrust his beliefs down the throats of those who differed from him. They should all work together for the good of their country and, above all, for the honour and glory of God. Their motto should be "Live and let live."

The Bishop then dealt with the work of the various Diocesan Boards, and said that the financial position of the diocese was most encouraging

R.A.F. ATTACK OSLO

Aircraft of the R.A.F. Bomber Command attacked objectives in Oslo late yesterday afternoon, stated a message from London late last night. One 'plane is missing.

A Swedish Defence Headquarters communiqué says:—"A number of foreign aircraft, coming from a westerly direction, flew over parts of Skania and areas of the provinces of Sma and Blekinge in an easterly direction during last night. The aircraft returned later from the east, flying over Skania, mainly in a north-westerly direction. Warning shots were fired at the 'planes by the neutrality guard at several places."—Reuter.

£45,000 CLAIM IN ENNIS

Over £45,000 are involved in the claim of the Revenue Commissioners against Walter Chapman, director of the Ennis Braid Mills, and L. Jordan, Ltd., proprietors.

At Ennis Court yesterday, Mr. M. J. Walshe, State Solicitor, informed District Justice D. Gleeson that the State would be ready to proceed on Friday next with 22 summonses against Walter Chapman, of Bindon street, Ennis, for alleged fraudulent evasion of Customs duties. Summonses had also been issued against L. Jordan, Ltd., proprietors of Ennis Braid Mills, in respect of 20 of the 22 charges brought against Walter Chapman, but counsel would probably make application to have the two sets of charges heard together.

Mr. G O'Donnell, solicitor, for the company, said the summonses had only been issued now, and the company would want an opportunity to prepare their defence.

In reply to the District Justice, Mr. Walshe said that anybody knowingly concerned would be responsible More than one defendant could bear penalties.

DOMESTIC PARAFFIN OIL

Domestic consumers of paraffin oil who were hoping for an increase in the half-gallon ration during October will be disappointed.

Owing to the heavy demands for agricultural purposes and increased consumption now arising from the restrictions in the gas supply—users of gas in Dublin and Dundalk will be entitled to the oil ration next month—the Department of Supplies has found it impossible to increase the ration, which must be continued at the half-gallon. The inability to improve the allowance emphasises, it is stated, the necessity for the strictest economy in the use of kerosene by all users of it.

POWERS OF INDIA ARMY LEADERS
MAY SUMMON LABOUR

A REUTER despatch from New Delhi states that, by notifications issued yesterday, military commanders in India are empowered to require that persons shall "assist in doing work which, in their opinion, is necessary to meet attack, or repair or reduce damage resulting from it, or to facilitate offensive and defensive operations against the enemy."

An official communiqué says that the success of military operations might depend upon the immediate carrying out of work for which labour could not, in the time available, be obtained through normal channels. Military commanders may, therefore, call on any available local labour forces, and labour so employed will receive full remuneration.

DEFENCE FINANCE

The question of the allocation of war expenditure between India and Britain was raised in a resolution moved in the Council of State yesterday by Hussain Imam, member of the Moslem League, recommending a special agreement for an allocation on an equitable basis and fixing India's contribution at 80 crores (about £60,500,000) annually. It was rejected by 22 votes to 11.

Hussain Imam said that although British troops were stationed in Egypt that country did not contribute towards the cost, nor was the American Army in India an expense to India.

Sir Jeremy Raisman, Finance member, said that the whole subject of the defence financial relations between Delhi and London was under discussion, and, therefore, he could not make a statement.

POLICE STABBED

A Reuter Bombay message states that four police constables were stabbed yesterday by hooligans in two quarters of Bombay, and there were renewed student demonstrations in the northern district and the port area.

BIG ARMY PARADE
TO-DAY'S DEFENCE OF CITY

Dublin's streets to morrow will resound to the tramp of marching men and martial music when, in a parade which will mark the winding-up of weeks of campaigning in the South, the Army, thousands strong, with armoured and mechanised divisions, L.D.F. and Red Cross and artillery, and with nineteen bands playing marching airs, will salute the Taoiseach at the General Post Office at 3 p.m.

Earlier in the day a blessing of Colours and units' pennants in the Fifteen Acres near Colaiste Mobhi. Phœnix Park, will be followed immediately by a Field Mass at 10.45, at which the Bishop of Thasos, the Most Rev. Dr. Wall, will preside. During the parade the troops will march eight abreast, and all orders will be given in Irish. Before the march past an Air Corps squadron will fly past the saluting base in O'Connell street.

In the meantime, Dublin is being defended to-day by the Dublin City and District L.D.F. units against the seasoned troops of a mobile division and attached units, which arrived in the area from the South yesterday. So that the L.D.F. may mobilise full strength, it is hoped that employers will facilitate workers who are members in taking the fullest advantage of the exercises.

The forces defending Dublin in to-day's military exercises will not wear steel helmets. Steel helmets will be worn only by the attacking forces.

ELECTRIC BULBS
HOW TO KEEP UP SUPPLIES

One million old electric bulbs have been returned to Solus Teoranta to be remade from the brass caps upward.

Automobile lamps are coming in more slowly, and these, say officials of the firm, are even more urgently needed. Auto caps are made of nickel, and are virtually unobtainable.

One dozen extra hands are at present employed on the reclaiming process, and, if the public send in more old bulbs, a further dozen workers will be taken on. The process includes a special method of dissolving the brass away from the glass. It costs one halfpenny a cap, as compared with the pre-war manufactured price of ten for a penny.

If you want a new bulb, break away the outer glass from your old one and send it in. You will be helping to secure future supplies for yourself, and, at the same time, keeping workers in employment.

RUMANIAN RESIGNATIONS

General Stoenescu, Rumanian Finance Minister, has resigned, it was officially announced in Bucharest last night. Aurel Pana has replaced General Sichidiu as Minister of Agriculture. Alexandre Neagu, Under-Secretary of Finance, was immediately appointed to replace General Stoenescu, who has been a member of Marshal Antonescu's Government of Generals and Experts since January 27, 1941. General Sichidiu, former Minister of Agriculture, is Rumania's greatest air expert. He had been in office since the Cabinet was formed.—(Reuter.)

CHINESE GAIN AT CHEKIANG
JAPANESE MASSING

CHINESE troops have recaptured an important point in the southern outskirts of Tungyang, strategic city dominating Japanese communications between Kinhwa, capital of Chekiang Province, and the coast.

This news was given in last night's Chinese war communiqué, says Reuter. Tungyang is only a few miles from the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway. Following this success and the occupation of several more adjacent points, the Chinese are continuing their attack.

In Eastern Anhwei more than 1,000 Japanese struck north towards Chekao with many tanks. They were forced to retreat after two days with more than 300 casualties.

A warning that Japan is preparing a new offensive against China, and an appeal to the Allies to send 'planes and guns were made by the National Herald yesterday, says a Chungking message. "Recent reports that the Japanese are concentrating troops in Shansi and massing aircraft at Peiping indicate that the Japanese are manœuvring into position to strike at free China," says the paper. It expresses the hope that 'planes and guns can reach China "in due course."

SEARCH FOR OIL
SPRAT YIELD INADEQUATE

From whatever other source lubricating oil may come during the emergency, it now seems unlikely that it will come from Irish sprats. A few months ago, when research was undertaken into the oil potentialities of the sprat, there were suggestions in unofficial quarters that the slogan should be "Every sprat an oil-well." But research, carried out at the Drogheda Oil Mills at the request of the Emergency Research Council, suggests that the oil yield even of an ocean-full of sprats would not equal that of the most modest Texas "gusher."

Those responsible for the experiments were not very hopeful from the start, as it was known that freight charges would present a big difficulty. The great Irish sprat-catching centres are at places such as Inver, County Donegal; Schull, County Cork; and parts of County Waterford—all fairly remote from the Drogheda mills. Moreover, at all these places the sprat season is short, and the catches are variable, thus making it difficult to organise a regular supply.

The pressing process to extract the oil turned out to be difficult because of the large amount of water in the sprats, and, when pressing had been completed, only a 7 per cent. yield of oil had been obtained, instead of the 13 per cent. which some people had hoped for. So sprats as oil producers are out of favour; their only hope of justifying any manufacturing process is as a possible source of vitamins.

KILKENNY COLLEGE
SPECIAL SERVICE

Our Church of Ireland correspondent writes:—On Thursday afternoon, at a special Service in St. Canice's Cathedral, the Bishop of Ossory dedicated a mural tablet, which has been presented by the Old Boys and friends of the school, in commemoration of the quater-centenary of Kilkenny College. The names of George Berkeley, Jonathan Swift, William Congreve, Sir Denis Pack, John Banim, William Conner Magee and Admiral David Beatty are inscribed on the bronze tablet.

The preacher at the Service on Thursday was the Rev. Chancellor A. A. Luce, S.F.T.C.D., who gave an impressive address on the history of the school. The lesson, taken from Ecclesiasticus, chapter 44, "Let us now praise famous men," was read by the Rev. Professor R. R. Hartland, a former pupil of the school. The tablet was presented to the bishop for consecration by Mr. C. G. Shankey, Headmaster, and the large congregation included governors, masters, present and past pupils, and the Chapter of the Cathedral.

The Service was conducted by the Dean of Ossory, the Very Rev. J. H. Burrows, and the Rev. F. W. Crooks. The Rev. Canon D. H. Chillingworth acted as Bishop's Chaplain.

MADAGASCAR UNDER MARTIAL LAW

With the greater part of the island, including Antananarivo, now under British control General Platt, the G.O.C., East Africa, to-day imposed martial law throughout Madagascar. This step, it was officially announced, has been taken to ensure law and order pending the establishment of a friendly régime. All French officials have been asked to continue in their posts.

Resistance by Vichy forces is still going on in the south of the island, where, according to Vichy radio, the Governor-General, M. Annet, had arrived at "a fairly inaccessible place," from which he would continue to direct "defensive operations."—(Reuter.)

Paris radio disclosed early yesterday that the new headquarters of M. Annet, Governor-General of Madagascar, are at Fort Dauphin. "Annet has not given in," the announcer said. "Orders for resistance will now be given from Fort Dauphin."—(Reuter.)

488 SHIPS IN A YEAR
U.S. BUILDING RECORD

REUTER and Associated Press messages from Washington state that the U.S. Maritime Commission yesterday reported to President Roosevelt that 488 cargo ships had been completed during the last twelve months, and declared that, with the deliveries scheduled for the remaining three months, the 1942 goal of 8,000,000 tons should be reached. The 1943 goal of 16,000,000 tons "appears reasonably certain of accomplishment," the Commission added.

Reuter adds that the President wrote to Rear-Admiral Emory Land, Chairman of the Commission, that the report could not fail "to inspire added confidence in the minds of the people of our nation and those of our Allies that we shall achieve ultimate victory over our Axis enemies."

President Roosevelt continued that when he gave directives, first for 12,000,000 and then for 18,000,000 and, finally, for 22,000,000 tons of merchant ships to be built by the United States shipyards in 1942 and 1943, he issued a challenge to the shipbuilding industry and the Maritime Commission. That challenge was accepted, and was being met gloriously and efficiently, despite the fact that, by his directive, the Commission thus diverted a large amount of its facilities to the construction of much-needed special types of ships for the Navy.

The September deliveries to date and those scheduled for delivery during the remainder of the month had been placed at 90 ships of approximate dead-weight tonnage of 1,000,000 tons. This meant an average of three ships a day, the President concluded.

Rear-Admiral Land said that this set up a new record for steel merchantmen construction.

FORCES IN ATLANTIC
JAPAN'S NAVAL CLAIM

A Japanese Imperial Headquarters' communiqué in Tokyo yesterday said:—"Part of the Japanese naval forces has advanced to the Atlantic, and is now engaged in strategic operations in close co-operation with the Axis navies.—(Reuter.)

There is no evidence to support the Japanese claim to be co-operating with the Axis navies in the Atlantic, says the Press Association; but it was stated in London last night that it was quite possible for Japan to have sent submarines into those waters. This, however, was not an operation which they would presumably undertake frequently.

If the claim is true, writes a Press Association Naval Correspondent, it seems that Germany may be needing further support in her operations against Atlantic convoys. To reach the Atlantic from Japan would involve a voyage of about 10,000 miles, needing at least one secret base and a supply ship. There can be no question of large Japanese surface ships operating in the Atlantic.

German Wireless, heard in New York last night, mentioned the Tokyo announcement, and variously referred to the submarines as "warships" and "naval units," and spoke of the Japanese feat in "crossing 12,500 miles to reach their new base." "It gives assurance that decisive successes have already been achieved in the Battle of the Atlantic," said the Wireless.—(Associated Press.)

U.S. INFLATION BILL
STILL IN BALANCE

The prospect of avoiding an open Congress versus Roosevelt clash over the inflation control issue still hangs in the balance. Senator Brown's blunt warning that the amendment to the Government Bill promoted by the Farm bloc was "a crime against the President of the U.S." has caused some "heart-searchings" among Senators. The Farm bloc amendment raises the price basis for agricultural parity, as set out in President Roosevelt's Anti-inflation Bill. In the Government view this will mean an increase in food prices, with a consequent demand for increased wages and salaries.

With only five days left before President Roosevelt's October 1 "deadline" for the Bill's passage, the Senate vote may be deferred until next week. This will allow time for public reaction against the Farm bloc's amendment to make itself felt.—(Reuter.)

REPORTED PEACE TALK
ENVOY'S VISITS TO POPE

VICHY, Friday.

The first comment on the object of Mr. Myron Taylor's talks with the Pope as President Roosevelt's envoy came in a Vatican City despatch to-night, says a Reuter report from Vichy.

The talks are said to have covered two main points—the possibility of finding a basis for peace, and the problems of post-war reconstruction.

The Pope, it is stated, is watching every opportunity to bring back peace. A frank exchange of views on this problem is stated to have been made in the interviews with Mr. Taylor.

NEW RED CROSS H.Q.

The Irish Red Cross Society will open, within a few months, new headquarters at 21 St. Stephen's Green, the former St. Andrew's College.

The premises, which have been taken on a two-years' lease, will serve as headquarters for the Dublin Branch, as well as for the Central Council. The front part of the premises, which are the typical large Georgian house, are being redecorated, but part of the rear premises, where there is a large hall, are being used for training purposes. Since St. Andrew's moved to other premises, the St. Stephen's Green house has been used for rehearsals by the Dublin Musical Society, and by the Edwards-MacLiammoir Company.

FRENCHMAN ABDUCTED

Marcel Cachin, 80 years old, former Communist leader, who stood for the French presidential elections before the war, has been "abducted by Communists from his farm in Britanny," according to a Paris despatch to the German News Agency last night.

Cachin, it adds, "had renounced the Communist party. A former Senator, Cachin was the first Communist to be elected to the French Senate.

HOW CONVOY RAN THE GAUNTLET
BRITISH ADMIRALTY GIVES FULL ACCOUNT

THE British Admiralty last night told the full story of the recent Russia convoy battle. For four days it had to run the gauntlet of ceaseless attacks by U-boats, dive-bombers and other 'planes, and weave its way through a minefield laid ahead of its course by Axis 'planes.

When the convoy arrived at port the escorting warships turned for home and took over the job of shepherding another convoy returning to Britain through the same waters, which had a few days before been the scene of tremendous battles.

The official Admiralty communiqué states:—

"A report has now been received of the passage of the important convoy which, as announced by the Admiralty on Wednesday last, has arrived in North Russian ports. The Commodore of this convoy was Rear-Admiral E. K. Boddam-Whetham, D.S.O., and the escorting forces were under the command of Rear-Admiral R. L. Burnett, O.B.E., flying his flag in the cruiser, H.M.S. Scylla (Captain I. A. P. MacIntyre, C.B.E., R.N.). Heavy ships and U-boats are based in the Norwegian fiords, and a large concentration of aircraft has been assembled in Northern Norway. The enemy is thus in a position to attack from bases conveniently situated along the flank of the convoy route throughout many days of its passage.

"The enemy's attempts to destroy this convoy began on the 12th September, although the convoy had been sighted by enemy aircraft and U-boats on September 9. In this early stage one U-boat was attacked and probably seriously damaged. On September 12 the convoy was again shadowed by aircraft, and it became clear that several U-boats were in the vicinity, and a number of attacks were carried out against them. Next day, September 13, the enemy attacked with U-boats, and made a succession of attacks with a large number of aircraft, and also employed aircraft to lay mines ahead of the convoy.

BOMBS FROM CLOUDS

"The first air attack that day was a high-level bombing attack by about six bombers, who dropped their bombs through gaps in the clouds. Shortly afterwards the convoy was attacked by between 40 and 50 torpedo bombers, who flew towards the convoy in line abreast in close formation. Carrier-borne naval fighter aircraft and the intense fire put up by all ships destroyed five enemy aircraft, which were seen to crash into the sea, and probably destroyed and damaged many others. The third attack of the day was made by nine torpedo bombers. This was driven off by gunfire, and the bombers were forced to drop their torpedoes at long range. Two of the enemy aircraft taking part in this attack were seen to crash.

"The next air attack of the day was made at dusk by 12 torpedo bombers. This attack was frustrated by naval fighters and the gunfire of the ships. Six enemy aircraft crashed into the sea, making a total for the day of 13 destroyed. At dawn on September 14 the enemy returned to the attack with U-boats. Several U-boats were attacked with depth charges, and in one case air bubbles, oil, the wreckage of wooden gratings, and some green vegetables came to the surface.

CARRIER'S ESCAPE

"Early that afternoon the convoy was attacked by 22 torpedo bombers. The enemy clearly disliked the work of the naval fighter aircraft, and selected an aircraft carrier as the main target, but she was not hit. Shortly afterwards a high level bombing attack by twelve aircraft developed, and lasted for about one and a quarter hours. Immediately afterwards an attack was made by 25 torpedo bombers. Again the work of the fighters and the gunfire of all ships saved the convoy.

"In his report, Rear-Admiral Burnett has stated: 'I shall never forget the reckless gallantry of the naval fighter pilots in their determination to get in among the enemy despite the solid mass of our defensive fire of every type. These pilots shot down in these attacks five enemy aircraft, probably destroyed three others, and damaged fourteen. Shortly afterwards another high-level bombing attack developed. No damage was caused. At least twenty-four enemy aircraft were destroyed during the day. On the 15th September the convoy and its escorts were subjected to high and low-level bombing attack for three hours by fifty to seventy aircraft. The defence was hampered by low clouds, but the enemy was harassed by our fighter aircraft when he was above the clouds, and by intense gunfire whenever he appeared below them. Owing to low visibility only one enemy aircraft was actually seen to crash."

LAST ATTACK

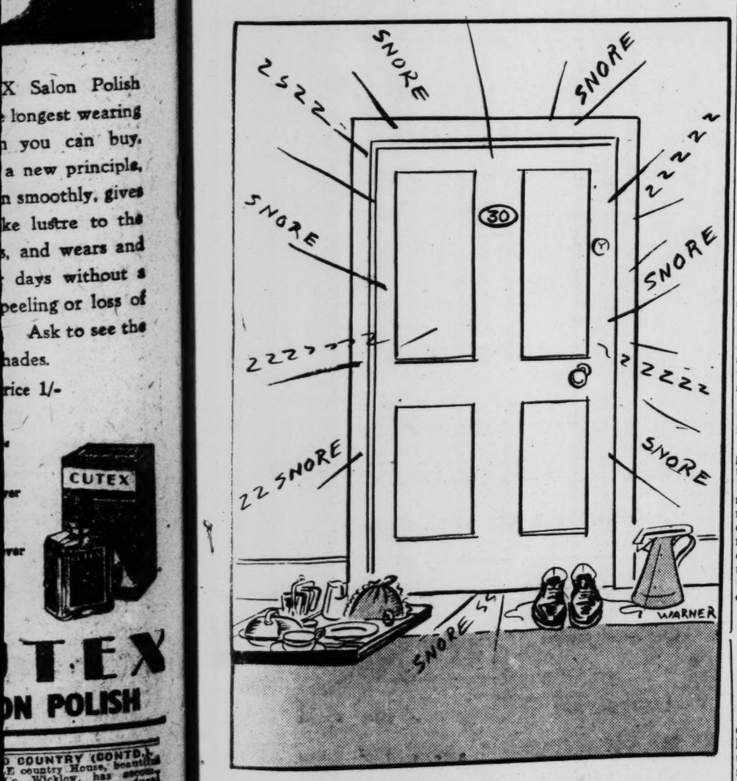
During this day, after another very promising attack on a U-boat, bubbles, oil and wreckage came to surface. The last attack made by the enemy on this convoy was by twenty-four dive-bombers shortly before it reached its destination. No damage was caused, but two enemy aircraft were shot down. As was stated in the Admiralty communiqué issued on Wednesday, losses were suffered among the ships in convoy, but, despite the large number of very heavy attacks made by the enemy, the great majority of the ships arrived at their destination. Once again the products of the arms factories of Britain and the United States were fought through to Russia by the fortitude and determination of the officers and men of the British, American and Russian ships in convoy and their escorts.

"The task of the escorting ships was by no means complete, and Rear-Admiral Burnett turned his force to fight a homeward-bound convoy from Russia back through the area in which the enemy was concentrating such large forces. It seemed as if the German Air Force had had enough, for this convoy was not attacked from the air. It was, however, attacked on several occasions by U-boats, and there were some losses among the ships in convoy. Many counter-attacks were made on the U-boats. The Commodore of this convoy was Commodore J. C. K. Dowding, D.S.O., R.D., R.N.R.

SEA AND AIR LOSSES

"The destroyer H.M.S. Somali (Lieut.-Comdr. C. D. Maud, D.S.C., R.N.) was torpedoed and taken in tow by another destroyer, but, the Board of Admiralty regrets to announce that, after having been in tow for over three days in bad weather, the ship broke in two and sank. The Board of Admiralty also regrets to announce that the mine-sweeper, H.M.S. Leda (Comdr. A. H. Wynne-Edwards, R.N.), was torpedoed and sunk. The next-of-kin of casualties are being informed as soon as possible.

"During the passage of these two convoys forty enemy aircraft were seen to crash, and a large number were severely damaged. Four of our naval fighter aircraft are missing, but the pilots of three of them are safe. Two U-boats were almost certainly sunk and four others probably seriously damaged. Throughout the whole of this operation coastal command of the Royal Air Force provided invaluable air patrols and reconnaissances under the most arduous flying conditions."



Whenever I seek an hotel,
I know I'll be done very well,
If they've thought of the night,
If the mattress is right,
The cuisine is sure to be swell.

CHAMPIONS BEATEN AT THE STADIUM

J. Ingle used his left hand superbly to punish J. McCormack severely for three rounds in the main bout of the Corinthians' B.C. tournament, at the Stadium last night, and the former middle-weight champion was far behind on points when a big injury forced him to retire at the end of the third round.

Two Irish champions were beaten—C. Caffrey, a recent graduate from junior ranks, outpointing the bantam title-holder, M. Colbert, by consistently beating him to the lead, while L. Flood, an old-timer, rather surprisingly got the verdict over the middle-weight champion, M. Sadlier, in a scrambling bout.

The Minister for Supplies has made an Order revoked as above. The Order amends the Emergency Powers (Kerosene Rationing) (No. 2) Order, 1941, to permit the restriction as domestic users of kerosene of householders whose premises are connected to a supply of gas, but in respect of which the gas is restricted to certain hours of the day. The concession does not extend to premises equipped with electricity, and, for the present, applies only to the Dublin and Dundalk gas areas. Kerosene retailers in these areas have already been informed of the concession by the Department.

The Order will be on sale shortly.

DOMESTIC KEROSENE RATION FOR OCTOBER.

The Minister for Supplies regrets to announce that owing to the heavy demands for agricultural purposes, and the increased demands for domestic purposes arising from the issue of paraffin oil for use in premises where gas restrictions are in operation, he is not in a position to increase the domestic ration of paraffin oil for October, and the quantity to be allowed will continue on the same basis as in September—viz., half a gallon for each registered kerosene customer. The Minister can give no assurance that this allowance can be increased in later months, and the strictest economy in its use must be observed by all users of same.

DUBLIN FISH SUPPLY

Supplies of fish were scarcer in Dublin this week than they have been for some time. A member of the trade told the Irish Times yesterday that some of the small boats run on petrol and crude oil have been unable to put out, owing to the fact that their supplies of fuel for the month are running short.

Three steam trawlers operated by the Dublin Trawling, Ice and Cold Storage Co., Ltd., are, however, in operation again after a period of inaction, due to lack of coal, and they have been able to bring in supplies of fish to the market and have eased the situation considerably.

Filleted cod, whiting and plaice are on the market at prices ranging from 8d. and 10d. to 4/- per lb., and the more expensive fish, such as black sole, at 3/3 to 3/9 per lb.; turbot and brill, at 2/4 to 2/6 per lb., are obtainable.

Irish Times

SATURDAY, SEPT. 26, 1942.

Why?

What interests her . . . far more than the vicissitudes of Marshals von Bock and Timoshenko is the cost of living in Ireland. Why should bread be dearer—and butter, and eggs; and why can we not buy a pound of bacon at the corner?

That is part of the conclusion of "Nichevo's" widely-read article in this week's Times Pictorial, and it expresses the sentiments of approximately three million citizens of the twenty-six counties. This is a land which by nature ought to be flowing—and has been flowing—if not with milk and honey, at any rate with milk and beef, with bacon and butter, with cheese and eggs, with vegetables of every sort, with virtually all, in short, that anything but the most sophisticated population can eat. Yet "Nichevo's" question is pertinent. Those commonest of foodstuffs, the staple of life in the Ireland of little more than a decade ago, are scarce and expensive. Only a few years before the present war a leading article in this newspaper, commenting upon the tourist traffic in general and the state of Irish hotels in particular, said that the visitor to an Irish hotel would be lucky to get anything better than bacon and cabbage for his dinner. Nowadays the visitor would count himself more than happy to be served with bacon and cabbage, and would be prepared to pay a substantial price for such a luxury. There are, of course, a dozen alleged reasons why bacon, and other staple foods, should be in short supply. Some of them have been offered by the Government, whose half-hearted explanations have been given half-hearted credence. It is realised that feeding-stuffs are scarce, with the result that hens and eggs disappear from the menu; but hens were being fed in this country for some centuries before ever a ship landed with foreign feeding-stuffs at an Irish quay, and there is no reason to suppose that our hens have taken a sudden dislike for potatoes. As for bacon, the darkness surrounding its disappearance is so near to Stygian as, in the popular phrase, makes no difference. Mr. James Dillon has thrown some light upon it, and has received little credit for his efforts—since 95 per cent. of the people are unconcerned with anything more than the fact, while the remaining five per cent. prefer that the reasons shall be kept dark.

This country of ours has been fortunate to escape the shock of war for three years; and the best thank-offering that it can yield will be a determination to profit by its experience. The war has made hay of the programmes of all the political parties. The late Patrick Hogan's doctrine of intensive exports of cattle was theoretically magnificent, but took no account of the possibility of changed relations between this country and Great Britain. Fianna Fail's conception of an industrialised country possessed, likewise, theoretic virtues, but forgot to reckon upon a condition of affairs in which imports of raw material would be available no longer. As a result, this nation has found itself between the devil and the deep sea. Its industrialisation is incomplete, and, in the name of industrialisation, it has bereft itself of those staple commodities in which it ought to have abounded. We do not venture to choose between the programmes of the political parties. Both have elements of good, and both have elements of bad—so much has been demonstrated by the war, which has applied the acid test to Fine Gael and Fianna Fail alike. We suggest, on the other hand, that both parties shall forget their doctrines, and shall make a genuine attempt to ascertain what is wrong—if only from the economic point of view—with the country. "Why should bread be dearer—and butter, and eggs; and why can we not buy a pound of bacon at the corner?" That question cries aloud for an answer, and nobody seems capable of answering it. The farmer who produces, or ought to be producing, these commodities professes himself puzzled; the people who buy them, or ought to be buying them, are equally puzzled; and neither speeches in Dail or Senate nor explanations by this and that Minister afford any satisfactory explanation. The problem of eggs and bacon and butter is one with an even older problem: how does it happen that an island country is unable to provide itself with fish? All four, and a score of others, will be solved sooner or later—and the sooner the better.

English writers, on the whole, rarely comment upon the changing face of Britain, although they must at all times be acutely conscious of the altered appearance that it presents to-day. A writer in the Manchester Guardian, however, recently proved the exception, and indulged in a few paragraphs of wistful reminiscence. He began with an account of his efforts to explain to a small child, whose memory did not stretch back over many years, the precise appearance and characteristics of the banana. He found, to his surprise, that his own recollections of the fruit were becoming rather vague, and, when he allowed his mind to travel back along similar lines, he discovered that the picture of pre-war England which he conjured up seemed more like ancient history which he had heard from school masters and never quite believed, or like a fairy tale, than a picture of ordinary, everyday life only three years ago. The writer is not alone in this feeling of remoteness from the pre-war world. Most people find it difficult to realise that there was a time within living memory when a man with ten pounds in his pocket could go to France or Germany or Czechoslovakia, or when a man with a shilling in his pocket could go into the nearest tobacconist's shop and buy a box of his favourite brand of cigarettes, neatly packed in a cardboard carton, with the requisite amount of white tissue paper and tin-foil. It is equally hard to realise that the children of a few years ago had never seen a barrage balloon, and that the letters "A.R.P.," "L.D.F.," "W.A.A.F." meant nothing, even to the average adult of that time. We have become so accustomed to the deserted streets that we have long since ceased to regard them as "deserted," and a story which another writer in the same newspaper recounted a few days earlier, seems almost plausible. According to this story, a little boy who was busy trying to race a motor car in the street was very nearly knocked down. The driver, naturally indignant, inquired if the boy had never seen a motor car before, and the little boy replied: "I have—I saw one yesterday." In Ireland, motor cars are not yet extinct, but before long we may find it necessary to describe butter and bacon to farmers' children who have no recollection of such things.
